CEO'S WORD

As 2025 unfolds, it is a year of both reflection and renewal for all of us at Ngee Ann Academy. We will soon be teaching out some of our most beloved programmes in Education and Business Administration. Each of these programmes holds a special place in our journey and we remain deeply grateful for the countless memories, achievements and professional growth shared with our students and partners over the years.

Yet, with every closing chapter comes the promise of a new beginning. Our mission to inspire lives and shape futures continues with renewed energy. We are excited to embark on our very first venture into sustainability education in partnership with Newcastle University, a renowned Russell Group university from the UK. In September 2026, we will launch the Master of Science (MSc) in Energy Management (Renewable Enterprise), a full-time programme suitable for those in Singapore as well as the region.

This programme is designed for professionals who want to lead in the global energy transition. Covering renewable energy technologies, environmental impact, sustainability reporting, policy and entrepreneurship, it blends rigorous academic learning with hands-on experience in solar, wind, hydro and bioenergy systems. What makes it truly distinctive is the industry project, which runs throughout the course, supported by project mentors, industry experts, site visits and guest lectures — ensuring graduates step into the workforce ready to create real-world impact.

Alongside this, we are also proud to introduce short courses in Design Thinking as well as Certified Secure Computer User (CSCU). Design Thinking empowers leaders and professionals to re-imagine business challenges with creativity and empathy, while CSCU equips participants with the essential skills to safeguard against rising digital threats in our connected world. From building client-focused strategies to safeguarding against digital threats, these programmes are designed to future-proof your skills and help you stay ahead in an ever-changing world.

The road ahead is filled with possibilities and we are excited to take these steps together with you. With the same spirit of dedication, partnership and innovation that has defined our success in our nursing, education and business programmes, we look forward to building the next chapter of NAA with you.

Warm wishes,
Kelly
